Student Profile

Remco de Vries,
Treasury Finance
Manager, Experian
Group Treasury,
Experian (Ireland)

"In Experian's Group Treasury I am responsible for the back-office and accounting of 24 entities, including the treasury entities and for the reporting of interest and financial instruments. For this I manage a team of three people. After a few years working in treasury I started to think that it made sense that I obtained a treasury qualification. I chose CertITM because I felt it would give me the overview of the large range of topics that I encounter and deal with in my day to day work which I would find very useful. It was broad, but still aimed at giving an understanding of these topics. The course approach came from a practical angle, but also gave the theory behind it sufficient attention. I noticed that during and after my studies I was more able to engage in the technical discussions and better understand technical concepts or market conventions. The qualification also counts towards the ACT's Diploma in Treasury. I would say to anyone that works in a treasury environment, particularly in roles where you would not see the bigger picture, that this is an excellent way of obtaining that understanding and overview of your business environment."
